Agriculture its Importance and Dignity.

When we contemplate the important part which agriculture performs in the scale of national industry, the numbers engaged in it, and the wide range of practical and scientific skill necessary for the development of its full power, we are led to give it rank as a manual occupation of the highest value in the social system, as first among the arts of life, and, as a science, embracing the widest range of human investigation. Agriculture may justly be considered the great moving power of society from whence springs not only its refinement, and its progress, but its very existence.

Why, then, with such high prospects, is not agriculture carried up to its proper rank, and placed side by side with those professions, which by common consent are denominated learned, and the practice of which is every where considered honorable? Why should agriculture, the first pursuit of man and the first of men among all his descendants, have a lowly and not unfrankly a mean place assigned it in public estimation? Because there is less of high wrought excitement and of the world's glitter about it than other pursuits. Because there is a prevalent disposition to worship the world's wealth rather than that of the mind and the heart. Because fiery ambition urges its votaries in the hot pursuit of wide spread renown. Because labor is considered degrading by those who cherish pride for emulation and rapid gains for solid worth. Because men befooled themselves and unman humanity by mistaking the cloak of modern society for the modest worth of the naked man. Because true happiness has been counterfeited by the showy drapery that conceals real misery. Because those engaged in it have been "casting a longing, lingering look" out into the world's gilded mazes, instead of concentrating all their powers in the improvement of their domains, and instead of bringing the fairest and brightest of their domestic flock to the honorable practice of their art and the close study of its science, they have urged them on in the great turpitude of the world's mistake, to the practice of what they have judged more honorable, and perchance, more profitable, at any rate, more fashionable and showy. Because, in short, false estimates have been made of human happiness, and the means of securing it.

There is, also, an opinion altogether too current in the community, that agriculture cannot be successfully pursued in Maine. That the region is too cold and the soil unpropitious, and that nothing short of stern necessity should cause a man to become a practical farmer. This false public opinion has been cherished in the bosom of families engaged in the art, as well as others, and has borne agriculture down with mill-stone power, and marred the social comfort and the moral health of the community.

In opposition to this popular delusion we have the strongest proof that can be furnished by that mighty test, experiment, that the soil of Maine is capable of a high and prosperous cultivation, and producing in variety, usefulness and amount to which no limits can be assigned. And while the soil and the climate of our State, under the hand of patient industry and skillful culture, give out of their abundance to cheer and bless, and the manufacturing and commercial interests stand ready and profitable customers in purchase the farmer's surplus productions, the State has been going on scarcely raising sufficient bread for her yet scanty population! How widely different might have been the case had the farmers of Maine generally followed the example of the few honored and honorable pioneers in the work of vigorous cultivation and constant improvement? The profession would have winged its way beyond all the shackles of prejudice and the clogs of ignorance, and a firm faith and strong love of the heaven-bestowed art would have been generally established.

In estimating the agricultural resources of Maine it has been quite too common to contrast them with the rich and easily cultivated regions of the West, and to decide in favor of the latter upon the single question of the quantity produced from the acre in favor of the virgin soils of the West. But it should be recollected that not even the prosperity of a people is to be decided upon the single question of the number of bushels of grain obtained from an acre. And how much less is the real happiness and comfort of a community to be estimated upon such narrow limits? The products, where easily raised, in great abundance, may from their location and other causes, produce even less money than a less quantity in other situations. Besides, we ought now to understand truths long since established, and which are of the highest practical account, that the money which is not industriously earned is seldom wisely expended, and that the real prosperity of an individual or a community, is not in the accumulation of mere wealth, but in the blessing of health in those habits of industry and frugality, and self-dependence, which spring from the necessity of labor and enterprise, and such a struggle with obstacles and difficulties, as will awaken and strengthen all our physical and intellectual energies. And when we should remember that the agricultural capacities of Maine, whether more or less valuable, yet such as they are, will be improved and used. Those who have enjoyed so much by means of them will not all break up the foundations of well established homes amid scenes they loved in infancy, and will forever cherish, even though it were proved beyond a peradventure that farming could be more advantageously pursued elsewhere. It ought, then, in view of this fact, to be considered a well established principle in political economy, that families and communities should, as far as possible, depend upon themselves for the supply of their own wants. Should seldom go abroad for that which they can produce without loss at home, and, in respect to matters of primary necessity, should endeavor to create resources within themselves rather than live in habits of dependence on others.

In a pecuniary view, however, there can be no doubt that the people of Maine would find a profit in producing from the soil all the bread, and other prime articles of consumption, for the whole people of the State. Vast quantities of valuable exports are annually carried out of the State for the purchase of those articles, which, if the value of these exports could be applied in the form of capital to the culture of the soil, would immensely increase its productiveness, and secure a sufficient production for home consumption.

It may be assumed as an incontrovertible fact, that Maine, throughout the larger portion of her territory, will afford to labor, intelligently and skillfully applied, in the cultivation of the soil, an ample reward. We do not pretend that her soil yields as large a return in quantity as the fertile soils of more congenial climates. Nor is it pretended that agriculture anywhere will always produce as much money as some other branches of business. It certainly offers none of the chances of sudden and great accumulations that speculation and commerce frequently present. But it is free from the unhealthy and unworthy excitements of these pursuits, and is not subject to the disappointments and the wreck of fortune and of hopes which not unfrequently attend them.

Its rewards are nevertheless ample. An industrious man may obtain by skillful agriculture, not only a comfortable subsistence, but the early enjoyment of a domestic connexion, have the means of healthful luxury, raise and well educate a numerous family, exercise a generous hospitality and lay up a suitable fund for the decline of life. Instances of this kind are numerous in the older parts of the State, while many cases may be found where individuals have accumulated a competence, and even riches, in a few years. And are the false estimates made of agriculture to be forever continued to the injury of society? Are not the arguments in its favor sufficiently weighty to cause the mind to deliberate upon the matter and to decide wisely? Shall not farmers generally and the members of Agricultural Societies, the pillars of the noble art, labor with renewed zeal to force conviction by the best practical tests of the excellence, and value of their profession, when by so doing they confer a two-fold advantage upon the community by lessening the mere consumers and increasing the producers.

"Alpheus" sends us a request to issue our paper in the morning; this we have been laboring to accomplish since our connection with the paper and since receiving a sufficient quantity of beautiful new type, we send our paper out in the morning at the earliest possible moment after getting up the most important news by the morning mail.

The request of Alpheus is rather late, but we will take occasion to remark upon it that we intend to give our friends their paper at an early hour. Did our income allow of it, we should enlarge, get a more rapid press and make other important improvements. This we cannot do at present, but shall keep up with the encouragement given. We now furnish our paper delivered at the dwellings of our friends at less than one cent and three fourths a number, and yet there are persons who annoy their neighbors by borrowing, with the plea, that they cannot afford to subscribe, while they daily purchase papers printed at a distance, and pay a larger price because they are so very cheap!

We are glad to learn that the Mechanics of Belfast, have, at length, concluded to form an association for mutual, mental, scientific and moral improvement. They have neglected this duty quite long enough, and we trust they will now move on with united power, to the accomplishment of the great purpose they have undertaken. They have good material there, and if they make the right use of it, keeping the association entirely above all influences, not necessarily connected with it, they will have occasion to bless the effort they are now making.

The beautiful barque on the opposite side of the river, will be launched at half past eleven o'clock this forenoon.

Messrs Little & Brown, Boston, have in press and will very soon publish, among other works the following:

HISTORY OF CELEBRATED AMERICAN TRIALS, by P. W. Chandler, Esq. Editor of the Law Reporter. This work will consist of several volumes. The plan of it is a union of the elaborate State Trials of Howell, and the sprightly causes Celebres of France. The first volume will contain all the celebrated American Trials which occurred before the Revolution, several of which will be prepared from Original Documents.

Launches.

The Ship "HARVEST" 650 tons was launched from the yard of May Hayward, on Thursday last. A fine ship of superior model and workmanship, Winthrop G. Farrin, master-builder. The superior Barque "ALABAMA" from the yard of Master Henry, was launched yesterday. Burthen about 350 tons.

The "RAPPAHANNOCK" 1150 tons, will be launched to-day from Messrs Clark & Sewall's yard, we understand. This is the largest merchantman ever built in the United States. Her model and workmanship are of the first order. Lincoln Telegraph.

Many of the greatest men the world has produced, have sprung from the humblest origin as the lark, whose nest is on the ground, soars nearest to heaven. Narrow circumstances are the most powerful stimulant to mental expansion, and the early frowns of fortune the best security for the final smiles.

A Joke of the Twitter Arnold.

We saw this morning the identical sign that had hung over the store of Benedict Arnold, the Traitor, when he was a trader in the street, in this city, and we present below a copy of it as near as a sign can be copied on paper. It is about three and a half feet long, and two and a half broad. The sign is black, and the letters look at the first glance as if put on with yellow paint, but on close inspection, they are discovered to be gilt. The sign was found some time since in the garret of the house in which Arnold lived, (opposite the store) and is now the property, we learn, of Mr. Jacob F. Hotchkiss, who has permitted it to be deposited in the Museum. We have followed the style, proportions and painting of the letters on the sign very nearly. There was one peculiarity, however, that we could not well imitate, viz. the dot of the 'i' in the motto which on the sign are inverted commas instead of mere dots. It will be seen that there is no point between the name and the occupation. Both sides of the sign are almost precisely alike. The motto, "Sibi Totumque," is translated thus "For himself for the whole, or for all." The first sentence is most decidedly appropriate to the man, who was "for himself in all things."

When Arnold was in London, we are at this moment unable to tell. He was engaged when here in the trade of horses and mules to the West Indies, and it is probable that his visit to London was while he was in this business, though that is mere conjecture. He was born in Norwich in this State in January 1740, and was apprenticed to an apothecary in that city, and a very troublesome apprentice he was, too.

Dress of the present Women in the South of France.

The young girls just growing into women are certainly amongst the prettiest I have ever seen. Much of the charm of their appearance, in my doubt, attributable to the neatness and appropriateness of the dress worn by the poorer classes, above all, to that which adorns the head, and which always consists of a coloured handkerchief, more or less tastefully arranged. The eye is never shocked here, as in England by the slovenly cap, the shabby bonnet, or the mock finery which too frequently disfigure this class of women in our native land. Whether the Bear-naise women are engaged in house or field labor, their dresses are always appropriate, and their colors, which are much more striking and brilliant than ours, almost invariably well chosen. Of these colors, the most tasteful are generally displayed in the handkerchief, which forms the head dress. It is of a manufacture peculiar to the country, which neither fades nor crumples. The middle is usually of a drab, fawn, or brown color, with a border suited to it. It is adjusted so as to give a Grecian contour to the head and face, and I suspect, notwithstanding its appearance of artless simplicity, that there are degrees of coquetry by which it is arranged, so as best to suit the countenance of the wearer. Beneath this handkerchief we see soft bands of dark hair carefully parted on the forehead, and placed against the cheek, so as to contrast, in the best manner, with a complexion at once glowing and delicate, healthy and pure. Add to this the neat little collar round the neck, the universal shawl pinned down in front, over which the hands, in curiously colored mittens, are closely folded, and you see ninety-nine out of a hundred young women, in this part of France. The peasant women, besides the handkerchief above described, wear generally, when out of doors, a kind of hood, called a capulet - It is made of white or scarlet cloth, of the finest texture, often bordered with black velvet, and has an extremely picturesque and striking appearance, whether hanging loosely from the head to the shoulders, over which it extends, or folded thick and flat on the head, as we often see it in Italian pictures. Instead of the capulet, the women frequently wear in bad weather, and almost wholly when they go to church, a large cloak, of black or blue stuff, lined with red, which entirely conceals the figure, and sombre as it is, looks not inappropriate when they are kneeling in the churches. Neither of these dresses are, however, so much used in the country, on common occasions, as in the town, the capulet being generally folded up until the peasant woman enters the market, where, of course, she wishes to appear to the greatest advantage.

Hints to Coasters.

The late gale on our coast was indeed terribly disastrous, as will be seen by referring to the columns of our marine news, for several days past. A vast number of vessels have been stranded in our bays, or while riding at anchor in our harbors, have been driven ashore and destroyed. Many valuable lives have been lost, which circumstance will naturally induce the humane to inquire if no means can be devised to prevent such dreadful disasters on the occurrence of severe easterly storms.

We believe that hardly any person, especially a seaman, can read the accounts of these melancholy disasters, without feeling at once, that many of them certainly, might have been averted, if these vessels had, belonging to them, good and sufficient ground tackling.

It is a fact, a lamentable one, that American vessels, and coasters especially, are too apt to have light anchors, and short cables. And when overtaken by a violent storm, while riding at anchor, unless the harbor is particularly fine, or the anchorage uncommonly good, they must go on shore. Nothing can prevent it and the catastrophe, however unfortunate it may be, ought not to occasion surprise.

A vessel will ride at anchor in safety for a long while, even in an open roadstead, with a gale blowing directly on shore, and a heavy sea running, provided she has a heavy anchor down, and a long scope of cable. The British ships of war in the North Sea, and occasionally merchant ships, when caught on a lee shore, in one of the heavy gales, not infrequently in that quarter in certain seasons, have rode out the gale in safety, with two cables "on end," bent to the sheet anchor and have thus avoided being dashed on the shore, which has the effect of Holland, an event which would have brought certain destruction on the vessel and crew.

On the Grand Bank it is by no means infrequent for our fishing vessels, to ride out a heavy gale in thirty fathoms of water, without starting the anchor, although a furious sea may be running. But our coasters are seldom able to ride at their anchors, during a tremendous gale, even when partially sheltered by a tongue of land, and when the water is moderately shoal and the holding ground good.

If the owners of our coasters were in the habit of providing their vessels with better ground tackling, we should have of fewer melancholy disasters, after such violent gales.

Science herself is not yet fully master, she will day by day evince more power, till at last, all the hidden secrets of nature will be spread before the eye of human investigation. Every being of the millions that are leaping upon the stage of existence, has some duty assigned him in this great work of exploration. They cast their eyes back to the philosophers that reared their names as high as the clouds, and they catch from them the fire of inspiration. They see that within the last twenty years the whole face of business has been changed by the single power of steam. That this scarcely known country of ours, half a century ago, is now teeming with health, wealth and mighty population. That distant countries send here for our steam improvements. That we are building ships for the Autocrat of the Russia, and supplying the rail roads of all Europe with our engines. It is these improvements of ours that herald our powers all over the world of civilization. They are hints to distant countries, sent in time of peace, to help ward off the dangers of war. They bespeak our intellectual greatness wherever they may push their mechanical ingenuity.

Leut. Gen. Shapnell, of the Artillery, the inventor of the shells known by his name, has taken out a patent for a new kind of fowling piece, which, without using caps, may be fired more than one hundred times by merely cocking the gun, and is more secure from going off accidentally, which is always the case when any thing touches the trigger, after the gun is loaded. There is likewise a joint in the stock, by which means the barrel may be elevated or depressed more or less, so as to suit the sportsman, and which may be done in the field by merely turning the screw for that purpose. Likewise a new musket, made to regulate the elevation of the barrel, according to the distance of the enemy, and also a pistol which makes a good defence against the broad sword. English paper.

Nothing looks more pleasant to us, than to see a young man whose wages are small, spending all he can get, and perhaps more too, for dress. Every thing about his person of the latest fashion and of the nicest fit, as though his whole mind centered upon seeing how pretty he could look, and for what? To gratify the eyes of those who are as foolish as himself. But this he does not do, for even they are disgusted with him. Instead of pleasing any body, he only makes himself the pity of the wise, and the laughing stock for fools.

It is not the number of people who reside in a place by which we ascertain its importance. The true standard of measures is the intellect of a country. The population of the Republic is only about 17,000,000, but, when we add to all this the steam power that turns our countless mills that weave in our numberless factories, that print our calico, our papers, and our books, and that keep incessantly at work day and night, all over the nation, we are amazed at our wonderful industry over and above mere personal labor.

Two things, well considered, would prevent many quarrels. First, to have it well ascertained whether we are not disputing about terms rather than things; and secondly, to examine whether that on which we differ, is worth contending about.

Reader, learn a lesson from the falling leaf. Improve every hour in the spring of your days, for the time is not far distant your autumn will come, and you, like the leaf, will fade, sink to the earth, and mingle with the dust.

"I've got a felon coming on my thumb," said a man yesterday. "What shall I do?" "Cut off your thumb, and send it to Raton-Rouge," was the reply of a bystander.

A man full dressed is a man, strapped, straightened, buckramed, stuffed, and wadded, within an inch of immobility. A woman fully dressed is a woman half naked.

It is gratifying to perceive that the severe gale experienced did not reach very extensively at sea. All the valuable ships that have arrived met with no damage.

Acquittal of McLeod.

The New York Herald of Wednesday morning, states that intelligence had been received by "supernatural express" of the acquittal of Alexander McLeod, and his consequent escape from the dread of punishment, on the charges preferred against him by the Grand Jury of Niagara county.

He was to be liberated Wednesday, and to proceed that day to the frontier of New York, under the safe conduct of the sheriff of Oneida, or some police officer deputed in his place.

A Ship Burned at Sea.

The ship Republic, Dorr, from Calcutta, for Boston, was burnt at Port Louis. On the 21st June, the Republic commenced leaking two or three days out, and the leak increased so that it was thought advisable to put into Port Louis, where she arrived July 6th. At 5 o'clock A M on the 21st she was discovered to be on fire. The officers and crew remained on board using every exertions to save her. She continued to burn till twelve o'clock, when the crew left her and she soon after blew up. About 400 tons of her cargo had been saved. The fire was supposed to have originated from spontaneous combustion in consequence of the water getting to the linseed on board.

The rumor has prevalence that the Home Squadron will consist of the following ships of war. Razez Independence, frigate Columbia, sloops Falmouth and Vandalia, brig Boxer, schooner Grampus, and steamers Missouri and

Colds, Difficulty of Breathing, Sore Throat, and all pulmonary complaints. It is also in extensive use for Clearing the Voice of Vocalists and Public Speakers. Its efficacy is fully established for removing the above complaints. As there are imithis valuable Cough remedy, is to the great expense of having it stamped "Wm. Brown, Boston."

season is sufficient to satisfy the whole community of its superiority. As an evidence read Certifi-

CONSUMPTION AND LIVER COMPLAINT.

BALM OF LIVERWORT.
DR. TAYLOR'S BALM OF LIVERWORT has been used successfully for eight years in the Cure of these Diseases. (Remember!) the original and genuine is made only at 375 Bowery, New York. ALL others are spurious and unauthorized.

CONSUMPTION & LIVER COMPLAINT.
As a general remedy for these diseases, I am fully satisfied from long experience, there is no medicine equal to Dr. Taylor's Balm of Liver-wort. Being purely vegetable, it can be used with the utmost safety by all persons in every condition.
It cleanses the lungs by expectoration, relieves difficult breathing, and heals the chest. There can be no question, but this medicine is a certain cure for chronic coughs and colds. I have used it for four years in my practice, and always with success.
A. F. RODGERS, M. D.

SPITTING OF BLOOD. This disease consists of a discharge of blood, often frothy, from the mouth, brought up with walking and coughing, and is usually accompanied with difficulty of breathing, and some pain in the chest. Sometimes it is preceded by an hæmoptoe in the chest, a dry tickling cough and slight shooting pains. This disease is always more or less dangerous. The great danger is that these symptoms may terminate in consumption, and immediate remedies can alone save this end. But Dr. Taylor's Balm of Liver-wort is a sure remedy, and to show its unparallel-led success, certificates of cures from 421 citizens, and many physicians, will be published in a few days.

NERVOUS DISEASES AND WEAK-NESS. Dr. Taylor's Balm of Liverwort made at 375 Bowery, is assuredly an excellent remedy for these diseases. My wife has been more or less ill for ten years. She was extremely nervous and at times so weak that she could not attend to her domestic duties. By the use of this medicine, her strength is wholly restored, and she is as healthy as I can wish her to be. My address is at Dr.
Taylor's office.

CHIRE OF CONSUMPTION. Mrs. Martin, a worthy member of my congregation, was taken ill some time since with a cold, pain in the breast and some difficulty of breathing, and in a few days thereafter she had a violent cough and violent pain in the sides, which no medicine would relieve. She continued in this way for a long time under the medical care of Dr. Rea, but finally became consumptive, and was evidently near the end of her earthly sufferings, when her brother persuaded her to try Dr. Taylor's Balm of Liverwort. When she commenced this medicine it did not seem to affect her for a few days, but by lessening the cough and her difficulty of breathing, she was relieved, and we had the pleasure of witnessing her rapid recovery to health.

Heart, Oppression and Soreness of the Chest, Pleurisy, Hæmic Fever, Night Sweats, (Diphtheria), and Chest, Lungs and Liver.

The Hoarhound, Liverwort, and Pleurisy Root have for centuries been celebrated in the cure of diseases of the Lungs and Liver.
Dr. B. D. Allen, after a series of experiments, has been able to extract from these medicinal herbs a Balm, which exerts a most wonderful effect in curing Consumption and Liver Complaint, and all other diseases of the Lungs and Chest. No great has become the reputation of Dr. Allen's Balm that it is now used in the New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore Hospitals, and in the private practice of our most eminent medical men.

For children laboring under inflammation of the Lungs, Colds, Coughs, Croup, Quinsy, and Sore Throat this Balm is of great importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves much trouble, anxiety, and expense, let them procure Dr. B. D.
Allen's Balm; and whenever a child has taken cold, has any fever, cough, or hoarseness, give a teaspoonful of this medicine, and repeat it if necessary; even one teaspoonful will often effect an entire cure. During the winter of 1839, many of one thousand families employed this remedy in the city of New York. The consequence was, that the number of deaths among children, as may be seen by the city inspector's report of deaths.

In order to give the reader some idea of the efficacy of this Balm, and how extensively it is used, we here introduce the monthly report of the cures it performed in the month of May, 1839, as furnished us by the agent, and published in the New York Sun.

OPINIONS OF THE MEDICAL FACULTY.
At a meeting of the Medical Society of Washington County, the following Resolution was unanimously passed:

Resolved, That from a knowledge of the composition of Dr. Allen's Balm of Hoarhound, Liverwort and Pleurisy Root, and the most astonishing effects we have seen it have upon our pa-that it will cure Consumption and Liver complaint, and we do strongly recommend it to the faculty and the public generally.

HAIRDRESS.

A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR Is the grand ornament belonging to the human frame. How strangely the loss of it changes the countenance, and prematurely brings on the appearance of old age, which causes many to recollect afterwards, and sometimes even shun society to avoid the jests and sneers of their acquaintance; the remainder of their lives is consequently spent in retirement. In short, not even the loss of property fills the generous thinking youth with that heavy sinking gloom as does the loss of his hair. To avert all these unpleasant circumstances, OL-DRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA stops the hair from falling off on the first application, and a few bottles restores it again. It likewise produces eyebrows and whiskers; prevents the hair from turning gray, makes it curl beautifully, and trees it from scurf. Numerous certificates of the first respectability in support of the virtues of Oldridge's Balm are shown by the proprietors.

Read the following:
ROBERT WHARTON, Esq. late Mayor of Philadelphia, has certified, as may be seen below, to the high character of the following gentlemen.
The undersigned do hereby certify that we have used the Balm of Columbia discovered by J. Oldridge, and have found it highly serviceable not only as a preventive against the falling off of hair, but also a certain restorative.

THE BEST METHOD FOR THE ABOLITION OF DISEASE, IS TO CLEANSE AND PURIFY THE BODY.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills, or Indian Purgative,
Of the North American College of Health, Are now acknowledged to be the best medicine in the world for the cure of
--- EVERY VARIETY OF DISEASE.

Because they thoroughly cleanse the stomach and bowels of those bilious humors which not only paralyze and weaken the digestive organs, but are the cause of headache, nausea and sickness, palpitation of the heart, rheumatic pain in various parts of the body, many other unpleasant complaints.

THE INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS.
Are also a certain cure for intermittent, remittent, nervous, inflammatory and putrid fevers; because they cleanse the body of those morbid humors, which when confined to the circulation, are the cause of all kinds of
--- FEVERS.

So, also, when morbid humors are deposited upon the membrane, and muscle, causing those pains, inflammations and swellings, called
--- RHEUMATISM, GOUT, &c.

The Indian Vegetable Pills may be relied on as always certain to give relief, and if persevered with, will most assuredly, and without fail, make a perfect cure of the above painful maladies. From three to six of said Indian Vegetable Pills taken every night on going to bed, with a short time to completely rid the body of every thing that is opposed to health, that Rheumatism, Gout, and pain of every description, will invariably
--- BE RIDDEN FROM THE BODY.

From the same reason, when from sudden changes of atmosphere, or any other cause, the perspiration is checked, and those humors which should pass off by the skin, are thrown inwardly, causing
--- HEADACHE, GIDDINESS.

Nausea and sickness, pain in the bones, watery and inflamed eyes, sore throat, hoarseness, cough, consumptions, rheumatic pains in various parts of the body, and many other symptoms of
--- CATCHING COLD.

THE INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS will invariably give immediate relief. From three to six of said Pills taken every night on going to bed, will in a short time, not only remove all the above unpleasant symptoms, but the body will be restored to even sounder health than before. The same may be said of
--- ASTHMA, OR DIFFICULTY IN BREATH-ING.

The Indian Vegetable Pills will loosen and carry off by the stomach and bowels those tough, phlegmy humors which stop up the air cells of the lungs, and are the cause not only of the above distressing complaint, but when neglected, often terminates in a still more dreadful malady called
--- CONSUMPTION.

It should also be remembered that the India Vegetable Pills are certain cure for
--- PAIN IN THE SIDE.

Oppression, nausea, and sickness, loss of appetite, constiveness, a yellow tinge of the skin and eyes, and every other symptom of a torpid or diseased state of the liver; because they purge from the body those impurities which if deposited upon this important organ, are the cause of every variety of
--- LIVER COMPLAINT.

CAUTION.
The public will please observe that the genuine medicine has the following wording on the sides of the boxes:
--- WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS.

found in small type, "Entered according to the Act of Congress in the year 1840, by WILLIAM Court, of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania."

above described, and those who cannot show one will be known as base impostors.
